

ALLTRADE: MEETING MODERN ACCESS NEEDS WITH 2N

Lee Harding, CI Technical Director at Alltrade gives some insight into the company's origins and focus – and introduces the 2N product line – NextGen access control crafted in the heart of Europe.

Established in 1989 and incorporated as a limited company in 1995, Alltrade has been a firm favourite as a major distributor to the installation and retail trades for over 35 years. We are one of the UK's leading distributors of custom install, security and smart home products but unlike traditional CI distributors, we operate from 14 branches across the UK. This unique trade customer-facing service offers instant product availability over the trade counters and face-to-face help and advice from our experienced staff.

With our own fleet of vehicles offering free next working day delivery and an industry-leading website, no other distributor is investing more to support its trade customers across the smart home and security industries!

Around the same time Alltrade was founded, three friends in the heart of Europe founded another company – 2N. They began specialising in the telecommunications field, but, after inventing the world's first IP intercom, the company rapidly evolved into manufacturing high-quality access control systems. In fact, their line was so impressive that they became part of the Axis Group in 2016. They continue to manufacture and develop their products in Europe, using the best quality materials, and now specialise in securing residential and office environments.

Our recent partnership with 2N has enabled us to expand our offerings and we are delighted to stock such quality technology. Our customers can now access 2N's portfolio of intercoms, answering units, smart access readers and accessories quickly and conveniently and we also deliver 2N training online and at our branch network across the UK.

RAPIDLY CHANGING NEEDS – IS ACCESS ENOUGH?

In a quickly evolving world, simply opening a door is not enough anymore. Seamless and secure access control that goes beyond door opening has become paramount for businesses and residential complexes that want to increase security, maximise convenience, and streamline the flow of people.

Being a seasoned distributor of audio, video, networking, and security products, we recognise what integrators and users want

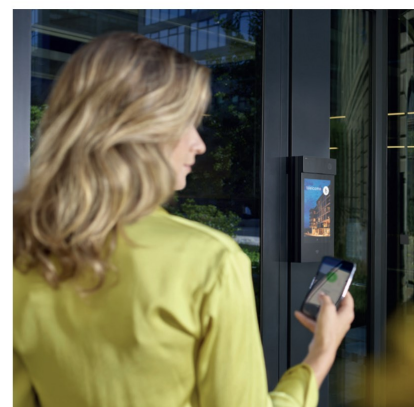

– which is why we are proud to offer the full 2N range. Their products can integrate with and enhance an existing system or can build a complete 2N solution. Whatever you choose, it is sure to add value to your building.

KEEPING UP WITH MODERN DEMANDS

Integration with third-party systems (home automation, security systems, and so on), remote management, mobile access control, full-HD intercom cameras – all of this can work together in a 2N access solution to offer comfort, security, and convenience.

From IP intercoms like the 2N IP Style (which features a 10" touchscreen and Full-HD, WDR-capable camera) to the 2N IP Verso 2.0 (a fully modular IP intercom that meets the access needs of any customer), 2N's products are designed to meet modern demands with sophistication and efficiency, whilst always prioritising device reliability and the needs of the integrator.

Visit our website to discover 2N's innovative and reliable access solutions. We are sure you will find something that will suit the needs of your project.
